Shirley Eckler,
Rev. John Pooler

NEWBURGH, N.Y. — Moulton Memorial Baptist Church was the setting Dec. 11 for the wedding of Miss Shirley Marie Eckler and the Rev. John Douglas Pooler. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert D. Eckler, brother of the bride. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Eckler of Walden, N.Y. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy L. Pooler of Scarborough, Maine.

Mrs. Dalton F. McClelland of Santa Cruz, N.M., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert D. Eckler of Newburyport, Mass., and Miss Paulette Griffin of Walden, N.Y. Wendy Sue Eckler was flower girl.

Franklin Pooler of Scarborough was best man for his brother. Ushers were David Sweet of South Hamilton, Mass., the Rev. Earl Imswiler of Kensington, Conn., Harry Rexroth of Scotia, N.Y., and Murray Fenwick of Oakland, N.J.

Following a reception at the church, the bridal couple left on a trip to Florida.

The bride is a graduate of West Suburban Hospital School of Nursing, Oak Park, Ill., and Wheaton (Ill.) College. She is a supervising public health nurse for the Dutchess

Lida Libby Kept Abreast Of Town News By Mail

Although she now resides in a Portland nursing home, Miss Lida E. Libby hasn't been forgotten by her Scarborough friends and relatives.

Mrs. Libby, who will be 93 Sunday, gets a daily letter from a long-time friend, Mrs. Howard A. Knight, of the Dunstan Landing road, a thrice weekly communication from a relative, Mrs. Velorus T. Shaw, of the Black Point road, and other notes and cards from a host of admirers in her home town.

"She is a perfectly wonderful person who has literally helped bring up the whole town of Scarborough," remarked Mrs. Shaw.

And Mrs. Knight, when Miss Libby protested her writing so regularly, told the nonagenarian "there aren't many people privileged to have such a friend to whom to write."

Miss Libby, who still owns a home in Scarborough, was born in the town, got her education there, and then taught school from 1889 to 1926. In addition, she served as superintendent of schools from 1901 to 1906.

Teaching was only one of the ways Miss Libby made the many contacts that make her know — and known to — most of Scarborough today. From 1905 until she retired in 1953 she was her town's correspondent for the Portland Press Herald.

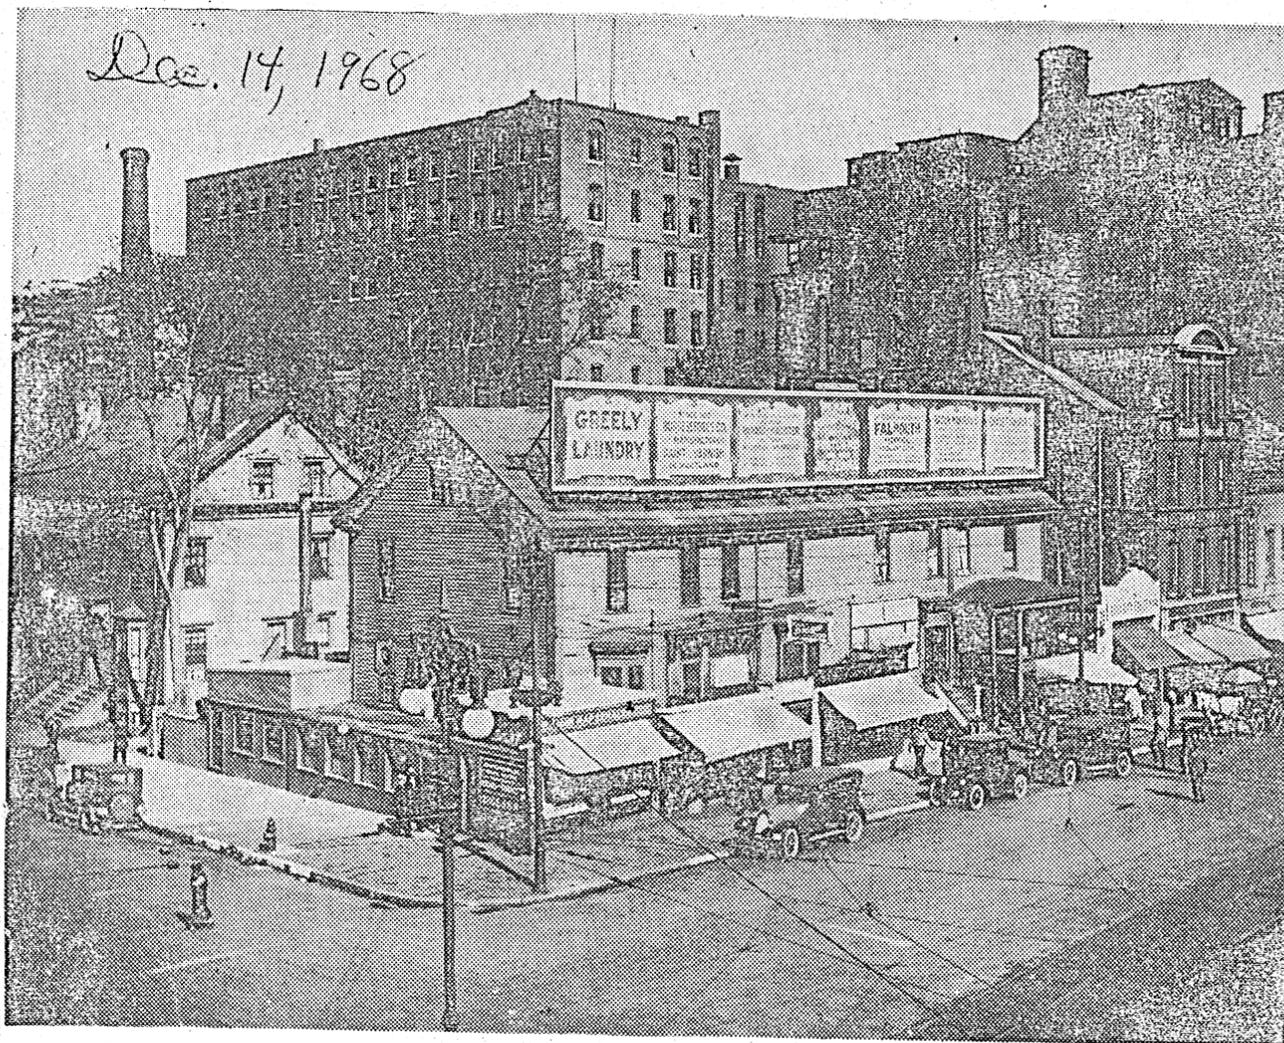

She also has been active in the First Congregational Church, Oak Hill and the Maine State Grange, Scarborough Public Library, Scarborough Civic League and Libby Family Association.

Miss Libby is up every day, and still does a good deal of reading, as well as some hand work and letter writing. She has a niece, Mrs. Percy J. Wright, with whom she resided before moving to the Logan Nursing Home, 342 Woodford St., a nephew, Elver Harmon, and a number of grandnieces and grandnephews.

SLOWER PACED — High and Congress Streets, Portland, around 1913, didn't bustle as much as today. Automobiles outnumber the lone horse and buggy, right, and there were no parking meters to feed. The stores in the long, low frame building include Kapsemale's, Troiano's, and Nickilopoulos and Gianibas, all fruit stores, J. W. Peterson, news dealers, and Langley's Restaurant, where Portlanders congregated after the fights. The tall building in the background is the Congress Square Hotel. Shaw's still occupies the store at right. Around the corner, on High Street, now a business block, is a duplex residential building. (Courtesy Dominic Marino)

MRS. FLORA A. DAICY

Mrs. Flora A. Daicy, 78, of 2001 Congress St., died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born March 22, 1889, in Scarborough, daughter of Samuel and Clara Craig Skillin. She attended schools in Greater Portland and was graduated from Falmouth High School. She lived in Portland most of her life.

Mrs. Daicy was a 50-year member of the First Baptist Church, a charter member of the Golden Cross and member of the WCTU.

Her husband, Chester W. Daicy, died in 1949. Surviving are four sons, Kenneth S., Warwick, R.I., Stanley R., Seattle, Wash., Chester W. Jr., South Portland, and Samuel S., Portland; six daughters, Mrs. Edward G. (Muriel) Felt and Miss Marjorie L. Daicy, Portland; Mrs. William (Priscilla) Gass, Spokane, Wash., Mrs. Elliot (Hope) Sidelinker, Brewer, Mrs. Walter (Claire) Buzzell, South Portland, and Mrs. Otis L. (Barbara) Scott, with whom she made her home; 23 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Alan McIlwaine will officiate at funeral services at 2 p.m. Wednesday at 749 Congress St. Interment will be in Eastern Cemetery, Gorham. 1967

Marian E. Walker

Gorham, Sept. 17 — Miss Miriam Edith Walker, eldest daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. S. A. Walker, South Gorham, will enter Westbrook Junior College Tuesday for the pre-nursing course preparatory to training in that profession. Miss Walker was graduated from Gorham High School last June.

Blue Hill Church

Crocker Preaches at Blue Hill

A highlight in the life of the Blue Hill church was a week of special services under the ministry of the Rev. Al Crocker. The church was filled almost every night. There were 50 first-time decisions, 13 rededications and three volunteers for full-time Christian service.

The Rev. Richard Hallquist, pastor of the Enfield and West Enfield churches, was the song leader, choir director, and soloist for these meetings.

After the pastor's classes were held, 25 were received into the fellowship of the South Penobscot church; 12 were received into the Blue Hill church; and one was received into the East Blue Hill church. The Rev. Relland Clark is pastor of all three churches.

A Prayer Meeting

There were only two or three of us
Who came to the place of prayer;
Came in the teeth of a driving storm,
But for that we did not care.
Since after our hymns of praise had risen,
And our earnest prayers were said,
The Master Himself was present there,
And gave the Living Bread.

We knew His look on our leader's face,
So rapt and glad and free;
We felt the touch when our heads were bowed,

We heard His "Come to Me."
Nobody saw Him lift the latch,
And none unbarred the door.
But "peace" was His token to every heart,
And how could we ask for more?

Each of us felt the load of sin
From the weary shoulder fall;
Each of us dropped the load of care,
And the grief that was like a pall;
And over our spirits a blessed calm
Swept in from the jasper sea,
And strength was ours for toil or strife
In the days that were thence to be.

It was only a handful gathered in
To the little place of prayer;
Outside were struggling and pain and sin,
But the Lord Himself was there.
He came to redeem the pledge He gave—
Wherever His loved ones be,
Himself to stand in the midst of them,
Though they count but "two or three."

And forth we fared in the bitter rain
But our hearts had grown so warm,
It seemed like the petting of summer flowers,

And not the crash of the storm.
'Twas a time of the dearest privilege
Of the Lord's right hand, we said,
As we thought of how Jesus Himself had
To feed us the Living Bread.

Gigantic Ship-Building Task Gains Momentum At

Four Keels Laid At South Portland Site

Red-Hot Rivets Replace Red-Hot Words As 8,100 Workers Begin To Arrive

By Richard Hallet

"God made this place for a shipyard 10 million years ago, but He didn't tell anybody about it," William S. Newell, president of the Todd-Bath Iron Shipbuilding Company, said yesterday.

He was standing in the middle of the new South Portland shipyard; and from this vantage point, it is easy to see that it has had to be dug out like a statue from a block of marble—or in this case, granite in spots.

Had No Trouble

It has been a lucky location from the start. Preliminary borings showed a good deal, but not everything. There might be hidden trouble, somewhere along that ten-million year line, but no fundamental trouble has developed.

Now the three great ship-basins are practically ready, with 400,000 cubic yards of earth and rock gouged out, and 50,000 cubic yards of cement poured in; and that's enough to make a change in any landscape.

A mechanical agitator is still pumping cement out through a high-lying pipe-line to the extremities; and the contractor building the yard has roughly 1,200 men still at work; but ship-work has begun too; the Bath-Todd Iron Company has moved in 400 men and laid four keels.

Scene Of Activity

duction. It's as if a man moved into his new house and started getting breakfast in the kitchen before the kitchen roof was on. Columns of the giant new machine shop are already up; caterpillar cranes are mousing around picking up structural shapes; cement mixers grumble up to the edges of the basins and discharge their load; the welders in the welding-school are busy learning their new job; and all the while, in two of the three basins, ship-structure goes steadily forward.

Nothing is finished; and yet, under a cloud of fine dust and a tumult of sound—a stuttering of pneumatic cold chisels, rumble of trucks, whanging and banging of steel plates, hiss of welding tools, rat-tat-tats too numerous to mention—the whole vast enterprise is under way.

Go down into one of the basins down; and riveters at work on the red-leaded craneways which run the length of the basin. With 25-ton cranes either side of the ship, the men can begin to sling steel plates up fast. Just now the crane-ways themselves are going up.

Red-hot rivets are at last taking the place of red-hot words; and in the present international situation, red-hot rivets make the best protest, and are worth more than their weight in diplomats. "Words are women, deeds are men," runs the Italian proverb.

Describes Keels

When I say four keels are already laid, I don't mean the old-fashioned notion of a keel. The flat bottom plates look little enough like the keel of the Flying Cloud. They are supported centrally on a permanent steel keel-block set on cement; and on either side of this keel-block, by an army of wooden shores.

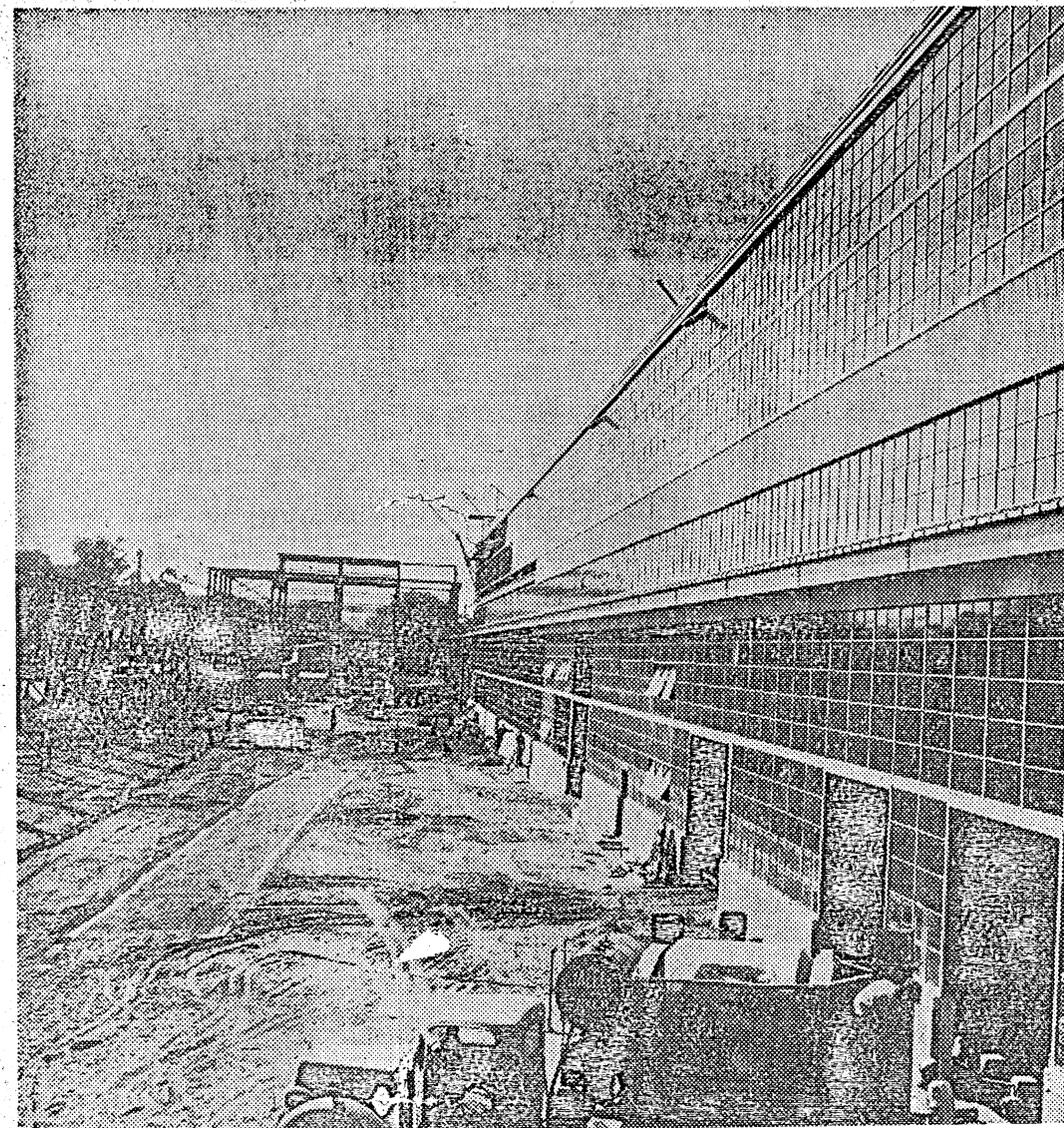

The new ships' keels lying on these look like nothing but big flat steel plates. The individual plates that make one of these keel plates are splashed on their edges by white working-letters and symbols. They have been fabricated to fit to a hair, and are drawn together by screw-leverage. When they are butt to butt, they are ready for the welders.

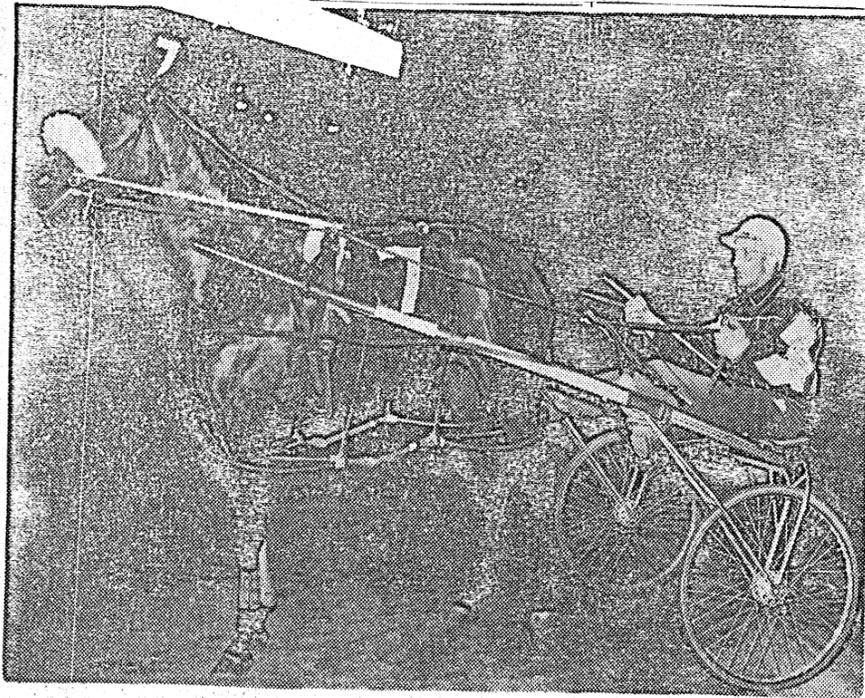

Ships will not be launched at this South Portland yard, but floated. You bring the water to the ship instead of shooting the ship into the water—an easier and less nervous process both for ship and builder. And in this way, too, the builder can launch a smaller fraction of a ship. He can float the hull practically as soon as its sides are high enough to keep out water, and make room on the keel-blocks for the next hull.

Speed Counts

Time is the essence. There are only seven beds here, and lodgers from the next shift are waiting to occupy them.

Signs of this speed and drive are everywhere. The inter-bottoms, or limbers, of some of these ships are now being welded together upside down, because down-hand welding is easier and faster than overhead welding.

Real Speedy Baby!

Woosie's Baby, owned and driven by George (Buddy) Reed, won the Press Herald-Evening Express Pace, feature on the getaway harness racing card at Cumberland Fairgrounds Saturday night. It was the fifth win of the season for the smart Gorham pacer and lowered his mark to 2:05 2/5. The victory also gave Reed a tie with Raymond Kellogg for top driver honors for the 20-day meet. (By Staff Photographer Johnson)

MRS. JOSEPH L. MOULTON

Services were held yesterday at the Walker Missionary Home in Auburndale, Mass., for Mrs. Florence Hooper Moulton, 62. Burial was in Newton Cemetery, Newton, Mass. A native of Raymond, Mrs. Moulton was the wife of the Rev. Joseph Langdon Moulton, for 37 years a Congregational Christian missionary in India. She died Friday in a Boston hospital.

Mrs. Moulton was graduated from Gorham High School, and from Bates College in 1915. Following her marriage to the Rev. Mr. Moulton, a Bates classmate, she sailed with him for missionary service among the Maratha people of western India.

Living and working in rural areas where her husband was a district missionary, Mrs. Moulton came to know first-hand many of the problems of India's small farmers. She aided her husband in the linking of mission relief and economic uplift work with the efforts of the government in many of the villages.

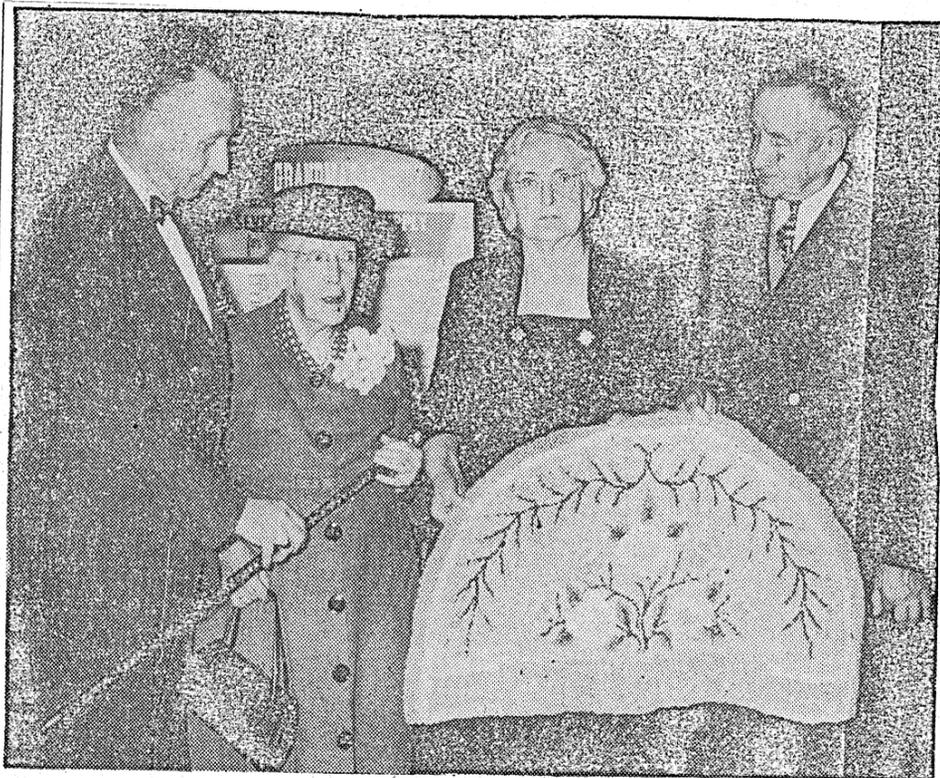

For six years she directed the sisal fiber industry in Ahmednagar which was established by the American Board of Missionaries in 1936 to give economic assistance to the Indians of the area.

Since 1946, she has directed the women's work in the Ahmednagar-Supa districts of the Marathi mission.

At the time of her death Mrs. Moulton and her husband were in this country on furlough.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Elmer W. Perkins, South Berwick, Mrs. Rae C. Bedington, Beckenham, Kent, England; Mrs. Robert E. Scott Jr., Arlington, Va.; and Mrs. Robert N. McFadden, Rochester, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. C. G. Cartwright, Stratford, Conn., and Mrs. Willis Furtwengler, Southwest Harbor, and three brothers, Vernon C. Hooper, Essex, Mass.; Milton Hooper, Bridgeport, Conn.; and Mel Hooper, Providence, R. I.

Memorial services were held yesterday at the Walker Missionary Home, Auburndale, Mass., the Rev. Dr. Edward Fairbank, Auburndale, and the Rev. Robert Little, Beverly, officiating. Interment was in Newton Cemetery, Newton, Mass.

How To Travel With Four Under Four Years

Who wants to stay home with a camp waiting at Sebago Lake? Not the Roger Knights, though packing water toys, swimsuits, changes, baby foods, milk, wash cloths and towels, diapers, car seat, mattresses and talcum and baby oil sometimes takes on the aspect of housemoving. Mrs. Knight gets up at 5:30 a.m. to make an 8 a.m. start, says "You really have to be organized. And I don't attempt to stay overnight!" Youngsters are Rebecca Sue (on dad's arm), 20 months, Warren (lugged by mom), 5 months and three-year-old twins, Darlene and David. Knights live on a farm on the Congress St. Extension. (Photo by Roberts)

Judith A. Chick Is Married To Payson Stephen Perkins

Candelabra, white gladioli, carnations and snapdragon provided the setting at the Woodfords Congregational Church Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Judith Ann Chick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Chick of Monroe Ave., Westbrook, and Payson Stephen Perkins, son of Elliot P. Perkins of Highland St., and the late Mrs. Perkins. The wedding music was played by Peter R. Perkins, brother of the bridegroom.

Carrying a white Eastern Star Bible centered with white Phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza and imported Chantilly lace with lace bodice fashioned with a portrait neckline. The bouffant skirt of silk organza which extended into a cotillion sweep train had an Edwardian drapery caught with lace applique.

Preceding the bride to the chancel were five attendants gowned alike in sheath dresses of hyacinth blue silk organza accented by Empire cummerbunds in deep azalea tones. Pink sweetheart roses, ivy and deep sea lavender were combined in their bouquets and they wore tiaras of ivy and sweetheart roses. Tina Miele of Windham, the flower girl, wore a white dotted swiss dress with azalea pink cummerbund and carried a miniature colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mrs. D. Kilton Andrew Jr. of Quincy, Mass., was matron of honor. In the bridesmaids' group were Miss Wendy Goad of Montreal West, Canada, Miss Martha Pratt of Boston, Mrs. William E. MacHardy of Westbrook and Mrs. David C. Dutton.

Thaddeus Alwyn of King of Prussia, Pa., was best man. Ushering were D. Kilton Andrew of Quincy Mass., David Ham of Reading, Mass., Henry D. Stephenson of Medfield, Mass., and John Andrew.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Portland Club. Mr. Perkins and his bride left for a wedding trip to Bermuda and Severance Lodge, Kezar Lake.

The bride who is a graduate of Westbrook High School and Green Mountain College, Poultney, Vt., is a display artist with Porteous Mitchell and Braun Co.

The bridegroom was graduated from Hebron Academy and Bowdoin College and is a sales representative with Mobil Oil Company.

The wedding rehearsal dinner was given Friday evening at Migis Lodge, South Casco, by the bridegroom's father.
