

2021.40.07

Graduating Class

Scientific Course

Norman Winship Thurston

Arthur Clarence Libby

Principal

T. C. Tooker, A. M.

Music furnished by the Arlington Banjo and Mandolin Quartette from F. Earle

Bishop's Lyceum Bureau, 499 1-2 Congress Street, Portland

Class Motto: "Character, not Reputation"

Graduation Exercises

Class of 1905

Scarboro High School

Friday Evening, June 23, at 8.00 P. M.

Programme

Music

Prayer

Music

Recitation

Amy F. Pillsbury

Kate Shelly

Recitation

Ruby L. Milliken

Ticket O' Leave

Music

Recitation

Agnes A. Snow

Mona's Waters

Recitation

Newton W. Harris

Extract from Bacon

Music

Essay

The Progress of Civilization
Arthur C. Libby

Essay

Norman W. Thurston

Life's Harvest

Music

Presentation of Diplomas

by the Superintendent

Benediction

What is it to Live?

The "season" was just beginning, a young girl's face was bright;
For the warmth, the light, and the music, had thrilled her heart that night:
And she turned to her companion, as the mazy dance whirled past;—
"Oh! this is something like life!" she said; "I feel I am living at last!"

A wounded deer lay gasping in the depth of the forest wild.
The hunter felt no compassion for the harmless creature mild;—
The blood oozed out from its nostrils, the Autumn winds were rife;—
He put one foot on the game, and said, "well, this is something like life"!

A train stopped at its destination; as the engineer clambered down From the cab, though weary and busy, there was not on his face a frown.
He looked at the passengers kindly:—"I have brought them safely home To meet the people who love them. 'Tis real living! I am glad I could come"!

The pathway of life is before you, young friends! 'twill be marked by the rose, and the thorn;
By sunshine, and shadow; with smiles and with tears. Ambitions within you are born
Which may lead to pleasure, to wealth, or to work, or the duties of loving and giving:—
Keep ever the goal to be won straight before: and may you the true life be living.

Written for the Class of 1905, Scarboro High School, by Mrs. Sarah O. Libby
Scarboro, June 12th, 1905.